The late Patriarch was a distinguished ecclesiastical personality. He was multitalented, committed to the Gospel principles and dedicated to the missionary service of our suffering brothers and sisters and he was loved and respected by the fullness of the Orthodox Church in Africa as well as the religious and political leaders of the African countries.

He established the Dioceses of Nigeria, Madagascar, Ghana, Bukoba and Zambia. He also began the renovations of the Patriarchal Mansion, the Monastery of St Savvas in Alexandria, the Patriarchal Vicariate of Cairo and the Monastery of St George in Old Cairo.
