She said: “We gain strength from you because we follow your God-pleasing efforts and your daily struggles at the Patriarchate of Alexandria to stand beside thousands of our fellow human beings in the countries of Africa, to spread the teachings of Christianity in places which are difficult to get to and in often difficult situations; but you also promote Hellenic culture and our history... We are proud as Greeks that the Patriarchate of Alexandria maintains its majesty and its historical substance in Egypt through the passing of the ages right up until today and we are particularly lucky to have you with us encouraging us”.
