He concluded with the paternal exhortation to the Cypriot brothers and sisters everywhere: “Courage my brothers and sisters, courage my children! God does not love injustice, He cannot accept it, as He is just by nature. Don’t forget this! The sunrise of the “Sun of Righteousness” will not be long in coming, soon it will once again adorn the peaks of Pentadactylus and Troodos with the radiance of freedom, with the radiance of truth and the radiance of the redemptive Resurrection, which, however, will always have as immovable condition a blood-stained and martyred Golgotha... Happy Resurrection, our brothers and sisters”!
